About Phil: "I am an experienced theatre director and writer passionately concerned with making theatre accessible, necessary, enjoyable and relevant with over 40 years of experience. My directing covers a broad spectrum of work and sectors: Theatre in Education, Young Peoples' Theatre, Community Theatre, the subsidised Theatre sector and commercial Theatre in the UK and Internationally. As a writer I specialise in adaptations for young and family audiences.

I also work as a professional Artist. I am predominantly a landscape painter. I work on black paper using gouache paint. I also use watercolour and acrylics. Recently I have been developing a series of monoprints, etchings and drypoints. My painting is very important to me. It allows me to have a relationship with nature that is very important to me as an Artist in all my work.

I make no difference between my Theatre and Painting, both are vital forms of expression in terms of my understanding and interpretation of the world."
